By Annie Cohen

Be prepared to be engulfed in Southern charm and exquisite home design when you crack open your copy of Eric Ross' Enduring Southern Homes ($40, Gibbs Smith). The author frequents Atlanta, so you might recognize the furniture and fabrics used in his designs from notable design meccas like ADAC, as well as Delray & Associates and Hedgerow Antiques. The book exudes elegance on every page, thanks to vibrant photography by Evin Krehbiel that reveals the interior of homes designed by Ross. His personal anecdotes throughout the tome are charismatic and interesting as he walks readers through the design decisions and aspects of each room pictured—and even offers his input on how to spruce up your own digs. Chapters span from Rural Elegance and English Country Charm to The Suburban Chic Home, proving the book as a must-have on every Atlantan's coffee table.
